

John Tombari's 26-year career with Schlumberger includes technical & management roles throughout several of the Schlumberger divisions. He spent nine years internationally and is currently based in Houston Texas. Since 2005, John has been Vice President of Schlumberger Carbon Services which offers technologies and services for the geologic storage of carbon. John currently serves as Vice Chairman of the North America Carbon Capture & Storage Association and holds an engineering degree from Cornell University.

